

Prompts for Business TTP Process

1. John C. Knapp argues that the church's ambiguous teachings about vocation, money, and business has long contributed to Christians' uncertainty about discipleship in the workplace and causes many Christians to struggle to relate their faith to their daily work. Using the text from Knapp, respond to the following prompt:

- Describe how Christian business faculty can provide an understanding of a Christian life in the world of work.
- To inform your response consider the following:
 - Alignment between vocation and faith
 - Working in business or a more traditional ministry setting
 - Financial wealth and strong faith – are they exclusive
 - Moral theology for work
 - Integration of faith in the classroom

2. Using Dr. Hagenbuch's article and Dr. Zigarelli's chapter as a guide, please provide a response that summarizes your understanding of business (or the functional program of business in which you teach) as a Christian vocation.

Hagenbuch, D. (2008). Marketing as a Christian vocation: Called to reconciliation. Christian Scholar's Review, 38(1), 83-96.

Zigarelli, M. (1999). Management by Proverbs: Chapter 6 "Think of Profit as a Means, not an End."

The responses should total 1000-1500 words.
